

Prevention and Stabilization

HELPING VULNERABLE PEOPLE REMAIN HOUSED

Stabilizing vulnerable households is easier and cheaper than helping them find new housing.

Our Stabilization Services provide direct financial assistance, professional case management, and creative solutions for people at imminent risk of homelessness.

These programs prevent job loss, health crises and other traumas. They cost as little as $1,000 to $4,000 per household, helping families stay in their homes and reducing the likelihood of future homelessness.*

According to the National Alliance to End Homelessness, "the average cost of rehousing a homeless individual can range from $35,000 to $150,000 per year, considering expenses related to emergency services, shelters, and healthcare."

"When BEDS dropped off the check that stopped the eviction and all the costs, I was in tears." - Gracie

The costs of rehousing far exceeds the cost of preventing housing loss.
